Every time you submit such personal information, Lightmaker will treat that information in accordance with this privacy policy. During the course of any visit to www.lightmaker.com, the pages you see, along with the possibility of a cookie, are downloaded to your computer. The vast majority of Websites do this, as cookies provide the Website author certain benefits, for instance, like finding out whether the computer (and probably its user) has visited the Website before. This is done on second and future visits to the Website by checking to see, and finding, the cookie left there on the previous visit. If using cookies worries you (it doesn't worry the majority of people), then you should either set your browser preferences to reject cookies or leave www.lightmaker.com. (To find out more information about cookies, please consult your browser's help text). When you supply any personal information to Lightmaker, we have legal obligations towards you in the way we deal with that data.

We must collect the information fairly; and

We must let you know how we will use it; and

We must tell you in advance if we decide to pass the information on to anyone else.

We will ensure that all personal information supplied is held securely, in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998.

This privacy policy applies only to www.lightmaker.com, so you should always be aware when you are moving to another Website and read the privacy statement of any Website, which collects your personal information. Lightmaker do not pass on any personal information you have given us to any other Website. Please note that any information you provide to Lightmaker will only be used within Lightmaker. It will never be supplied to third parties without first obtaining your consent unless we are obliged by law to disclose information.
